> We frequently come across statements as the many things which we have learned from the. Chinese, or which they have taught us, and I now perceive by an article on the subject in the Sanifary Record that the Chinamen have been teaching our trans-Atlantic consins how to make cheese from tale, gypsum, peas pudding, and artificial milk. An account is given also of an establishment on quite an extensive scale for the manufacture and sale of powdered talo. This substance, under the name of Shek-ko or Watshek, has been used from time immemorial by the simple Chinaman to adulterate various articles sold to foreigners, and it now appears he Chinese have introduced the stuff into Americe, where it is said to be already largely used to mix with butter, cheese, flour, &c. I mos sincerely trust, however, that the statements seen in print as to the large quantities of powdered tale thus employed may turn out to be somewhat exaggerated. In truth the Americans have but small cause to love their almond-eyed delestial visitors. What with slavery, opium dons, gambling dens, and other resorts of infamy, and now powdered tale sold for good cheese and butter, Messrs. Kearney and his gang really appear to have some show of reason for their

> I charryed the other day a piece of beef placed upon a table, behind which, on the wall, was pasted aslip of paper containing an inscription to the spirit of the earth, thus making a kind of alter of the table. The piece of raw beef had been placed upon the table by inadvertence and immediately on perceiving it a Chinaman tore down the paper inscription, observing that to place beef on such a spot, that is, before the spirit of the earth, was an act of sacrilege; the spirit did not eat beef, or mutton; or rat, or dog, but he ad. ded the remark, poultry might be offered. The man was of a somewhat doltish and unintelliment disposition, and beyond the fact that he was strongly impressed with a belief in the impropriety of offering beef to the spirit of the ground I sould get ue intelligible account from him, nor could be give meany reasons for his superstition. The ox as a tiller of the ground has some claims on the supustition of an agriculturist, but this does not apply to mutton, and if mutton is objected to, why can the fiesh of fowls be allowed?

THE FRENCH IN TONGUIN.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.] HAIPHONG, 16th August.

The report mentined in my last of the capture of Hai Duong was confirmed vesterday by the return of part of the expeditionary force with the Drapsaum Jaunes. They brought the news of the capture of the citadel of Hai Duong, together with 150 guns and the Annamite man-of-war Fienea, one of the small gamboats presented by the French Government to the King of Annam in 1874. The prize was towed into port by the gunbout Antilops. I hear that the Aunemites retired at once, and that their stockades were taken without any less to the French. In addition to the guns and gunboat taken, 400,000 house. skrings of each, of the value of about $60,000, fell into the hands of the victors.

Important news has come down from Hanoi since my last hurried letter. On the morning of the 14th just. General Bouet made a sortie from Hanoi with a force of some two thousand men, including the Drapeaus Jaunes, with artillery. He ordered an advance upon Fuhai, the nearest fortified position of the enemy, about six miles from Hanoi. The Black Flags were found there in great strength, and gave battle. Mogul Bingh v. Sapooba bingh, 2200. Mr. Francis, instructed by Messra. Denny's and Mossop, appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Wise, instructed by Messra, Bremton, Wotton, and Deacon, for the defendant. The complainant, who is like constable No.

No. 672, came to him on the 19th August, 1881, and asked him for the loan of $100 which he said he was in want of for a short time. The money was paid in the presence of three other constables in the Central Station, but no receipt was given. which was in accordance with the oustom of his rece-in transactions among themselves. This money was not repaid to him, and in January. 1882, the defendant came to him sgain and asked for the lean of another $100. He had not the money by him at the time, but at the defendant" request he borrowed the money of another constable, Narunian Singh, and handed it over to him. His Lordship said he believed there had been a decision in a similar case by Judge Ball some years ago. In that case some regulation had been put in which prohibited the lending or borrowing of money between out constable and secret as he und subtedly will be in places where smother, and Judge Ball non-suited the plaintiff on the ground of this prohibition. The regulation was No. 9 of 1852. Mr. Francis submitted that the Capt. Superintendent of Police had power, subject to H.E. the Governor, to make such regulations for the force as might from time to time be found neces sary, and he would submit that while the Capt Superintendent could regulate the internal dis cipline and order of the force he had no right to deal with outside matters. The regulation gave the power to punish an effender in this respect, but he (Mr. Francis) esbmitted that it could not affect the court. In answer to his Lordship, he said he would not contend that the regulation was ultra vires, but he would submit that it did not make this claim null and wold and did not prevent the plaintif recovering in hat court.

His Lordship said he distinctly recollected the matter had been decided at he had said, and he thought it not unlikely that Mr. Francis had acted upon that decision. Mr. Francis said he believed that when he was

His Lordship said he felt it was a serious thing to take away a man's civil right, and he would before deciding the point, give an opportunity for having it argued before the full court in the meantime he would look the matter up. Decision was accordingly reserved.

MINES IN KOREA.

A despatch from Hor Majesty's Minister in

C-3,633]. In forwarding the reports Sir Harry Parks

The tour having been undertaken in the denth of winter was conducted auder disadvantageous

He alled that the production would not be very

On the 8th Jan., starting early, we proceeded to the castward along a small road for about seven miles, and reached Sampha-ri. In a willow tree valley (or Yang-kok) there is an iron mine. The people in the neighbourhood have onene! shops and smelted the iron ore for many years past. The depth of the mine (oxisting workings) is shout 80 or 9) feet. The engineer entered the opening of the mine and examined the ore: he pronounced it to be of good quality. From this valley of willows (or Yang-kok) we proceeded about a mile, and reached a place called Ri-elltong. In the summer of this year Tha-hoingkwang brought soldiers with him to this place, Those of the community who visited the and opened up more than forty mines. The wresked premises of the Lee House immediately depth of the openings thus made varied from between 30 and 40 feet to between 50 and 60 feet. The veins of copper became thicker as the work progressed, and more prominent, but the resources taking was stopped. The soldiers, however, stayed on the spot, waiting for the time when operations would be recommenced. The engineer took some of the copper ore, pounded it into small pieces in a mortar, and then put it into a glass bottle. The bottle was 4 or 5 inches long and about as thick as a man's thumb. He put a preparation into the bottle and then warmed it over a fire: he added a little more of the preparaingorder, and is capable of turning out the same tion and heated it again over the fire. The cre gradually melted into a liquid substance of a reen colour. He then put into the bottle some other preparation, what it was I do not know, but the colour of the contents of the bottle became much deeper; he then said "good, good."

At Tang hyong the lead mine has two openhundred feet and from this numerous side worklogs branch off. The other descends straight for about 800 feet, and from this also numerous side workings branch off, following the direction of the veins of ore. Some of these, it is said. extend to a distance of one and a half to two miles. We descended only some 500 feet, when the air began to be exhausted and norious vapours rose from the soil. We all felt unwell. and began to perspire and choke for want of air. The engineer was afraid, and us we found it impossible to penetrate further into the miss. we came out. We caused the soldiers to fotch a great many pieces of ore out of the mine, and then returned to the lead shop. The engineer lasked the General who sold the lend how much lead was extracted from the mine every The General replied the workings were deep, and it was therefore difficult to extract the ors. The amount of lead obtained in the reason assigned for such rash acts being one day was about 30 or 40 kin (40 to 531b). The engineer langhed and said, "It would not We hear that a small mandarin was recently to that andermy system. I should pla e several thousand kis of gunpowder in the furthest depths of the workings, and explode the powder by means of a slow match. The mountain would been scorohed up through went of rain, and thus be rent asunder, the rooks split in fragments, and the daily yield after this operation would be The amount be applied to his own use, and several thousand kin of lead." He appeared to be telling the truth, but his hearers would not, for all that, believe him. There is also a copper mine in this place, Sc.kok, which was opened in the summer of this year.

It is well. therefore, take precautions in time, and to remove the interdict (on trade) by see. and thus extend the means of earning a livel hood, open up the mines, and thus provide for the wants of the country. This boing the means by which the country can be made rich and powerful, is a most urgest matter. have travelled twenty days, and have seen more than ion mines. Copper and icon are mostly the produce of these mines, and there was clear evidence of the good quality of the ore. The four iron mines I saw at Kang-hwa, Yougphyong, Kim-hwa. Hong ohhon, and the three copper mines at Kim-shu, Ri-sil-tong, and Entkai-tong, could, I think, be worked certainly for a hundred years. There are several other mines in the vicinity which the country people either knew about but would not show me, or did not even know of. If these good mines are left to the working of the country people, who follow with reverence ancient methods, and never change their system of work, no profit will be seen. The local system of obtaining ore from a mine is to do first what is essiest, and leave to the last what is difficult. They dig away at the mine, and the hale gets gradually deeper but there is no ventilation, and no means of furnishing a light; there are many springs which discharge water (into the workings), and no app pliances for getting rid of this water. If the mine is under these circumstances abandoned, the capital put into it is lost; while, on the other hand, it can only be worked at risk of life. profit can thus be made out of these mines under the local method of working them. If, however, muchinery is employed, and in other respects the mines are worked according to modern methods, the difficulties of light and water will be avoided. the miners can work as they please, the workings will be developed, the number of men employed will increase, and more and more ore will be extracted from the mine. Under this system the bardest is put first and the essiest last. If modern methods are followed, much capital will be required for the erection of foreign machinery. and, in employing foreign articans, care must be aken to select good men. Japanese farnaces for forcing iron are used (by the country people), bu they are useless. They en are as workmen coal miners at Ho-puk, but no practical results are visible. They ought to take warning by these failures. Therefore, although there is plenty of ore in the mines in the various Prefectures, there is no coal to be obtained in the vicinity of the mines which can be used for the purpose smelting the ore; and, moreover, as the ore fourd in lefty and steep mountain ranges, i is not easy to transport it. The working of the mines of Korea is not only attended with more difficulties than the working of mines in foreign countries, but it is even more difficult than it is in China. Railways are the only means of Overcoming these difficulties. The construction of railways and the opening of mines are two things which necessarily go together; railways are constructed in consequence of the opening of mines, and the ore, when extracted, is transported by means of the railways. In working the various five metal mines, the first thing to be done is to look for places where there is coal; the second is to construct connecting lines of railways. Both are essential. To carry out these three objects many millions of teels will be required. If these undertakings were all carried out with enthusiasm, not only would all the mines in the various circuits be opened up, but railways would be gradually extended throughout the country as far as Wönsan in the north and Pusan in the south, and it would thus be the most effectual means of securing the weslth and strength of the country. No indication is given as to who are the writers of the two reports, but they are evident by natives of China or Japan.

AN HONEST JOB.

It ought not to be a cause of surprise gratulation that an examination of the ac counts of the Brooklyn bridge disclose neither stealing nor dishonesty; but man much as this great work scarcely has parallel in this respect in the annals. modern "jobs," it would be unfair to with hold the highest encomiums from the officia who have done their whole duty to the publi honestly and squarely. For many month the experts have been at work checking o bills against accounts, examining contract and thoroughly overhauling the work from the foundations of the bridge to its openin The experts had to consider the real estaused for bridge purposes, the cost and amoun of material, and the cost and distribution labour. Their work is now done, and the will be presented to the mayor . It appears that the exper reached the conclusion th bridge "has been honestly an economically built; that considering t magnitude of the work the mistakes mad have been singularly few in number at small in extent, and that the books have been remarkably well kept. The magnitude of the task may be understood from a single instance. Every one of 50,000 bills has been gone over, item by item; every figure on the books has been carefully checked off, and every contract has been scrupulously examined. That no errors should have been found was not to be expected. A few trilling mistakes in addition are reported, but they are insignificant, Several contracts were found to have been changed, but the variations from the original figures are reported to have been carefully noted down and explained. A little item, for example. of half a ceat a pound for iron was observed; the engineer responsible for it was immediately called upon fan an explanation. He made it at once: corrected iron had been substituted for the man rial originally provided, but, as he showed, the cost of the higher priced material by the pound was more than offset by the smaller amount needed, and the bill was therefore reduced by the change. This is a typical instance, and the plosest scrittiny failed to slow a single inspicione or unaccountable variation.
